

PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN OPENS

MISS WHEELER SPEAKS

At Coliseum. Scores Bayles and Davidson

The Presidential campaign opened with a speech in the Coliseum by Miss Zazel Wheeler, the popular suffragist candidate. The speaker was introduced by Lena Andrews, Ll. D., the recently elected representative from Indiana. Miss Wheeler dwelt at length upon the corruptness of the machine which has controlled the last administration and made a great plea for cleaner politics.

She scored President Davidson's tariff policy and accused him of partiality in awarding appointive offices, citing the cases of the following: Hon. Arthur Krockenberger, Minister to Germany; Harvey Clark, Secretary of State; Arthur Ervin, Secretary of War; and Charles Bresett, Postmaster of New York City. Each of these, she pointed out, gained his office through being a class-mate of the President and was not chosen because of his ability. However she openly admitted her intention of making Vesta Adams, the prominent Pittsburg slum worker, who was formerly one of her class-mates, Secretary of State in case she is elected. She closed her remarks with a ringing attack on Robert Bayles, the popular Republican presidential candidate, in which she referred to him as "that loud-mouthed, one-horse politician from Indiana."

WITH THE THEATRES

BY P. S. RHOADS, Dramatic Critic.

The all-star production of "The Taming of Eglantine", at the Globe last night was a huge success. Miss Irene Madden as Eglantine scored a tremendous hit. Her provoking manner of sticking out her tongue and her winsome smile endeared her immediately to her audience. Eleanor Mayrose, who starred last year in "Dr. Kingsbury's Little Lady" took the juvenile lead. The charming little Hoosier actress was at her best last night and was forced to answer many curtain calls. The part of Barclay, the old chemistry professor, was most ably taken by John Comoford, who jumped into fame last year as Martin in "The Master Key". Mr. Comoford displayed a finished skill in the strong emotional scenes which stamps him

Among its number are such celebrities as Jane Neukom, the president of the Knickerbocker Young Ladies' Seminary, Harriet Thurston, the secretary of the School Board, Emorald Davis, president of the N. Y. Giants, and others. Mr. Comoford, being a resident of the city, is a member of the club and Miss Madden and Miss Mayrose are Garfield alumni, although not belonging to the New York organization.

ENGINEER AND ARTIST WED

CULMINATION OF ROMANCE

Gathering of Celebrities at Brilliant Affair.

A wedding which attracted much interest among the four hundred because of the romance attached to it took place Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen R. Freeman when their eldest daughter, Dorothy, famed for her portrait painting, became the bride of Mr. Paul Loser, who has won much favorable comment by the bridges which he has constructed for the English Government in India. Mr. Loser first met his bride while she was traveling through India. The brief acquaintance they had was renewed when they both returned to New York and soon ripened into love which culminated Thursday. The bride was attended by six bridesmaids all equally famed with Miss Freeman. They were: Miss Blanche Winkles, famous authoress; Miss Louise Schuberth, known all over the world by her touching poem, "Days Gone By"; Miss Ruby White, whose rendering of "Camille" has been considered unequalled since the days of Sarah Bernhart; Miss Ruth Wires, well known philanthropist; Miss Jennie Huston, celebrated juvenile actress, and Miss Blanche Martin, who has done much in the last three years to reform New York. Among those present were: Misses Mercedes Hall and Anna Hess, who have just returned from Europe where they were Red Cross nurses and where they were decorated with the Iron Cross by Kaiser Wilhelm; Miss Pearl Miller, who has just returned from China as a missionary; Miss Gladys Brown and Janet Casto, who together have translated many of Homer's works.

Divorced Tax Bill Defeated.

The bill for repealing the acts taxing divorced people double has just gone down in inglorious defeat after a stirring speech by Senator Ben Anthony, of Indiana, who rivals his famous namesake in oratory. Mr. Anthony spoke against the bill and it is due mainly to his efforts that it was defeated. The bill was ably defended by Senators Wallace Myer and Ralph Hanes of Illinois.

The U. S. Olympic team left fifty strong today on the U. S. S. "Columbia" for Vienna to compete in the Olympic games to be held there. In the discus, Owen Floyd is the mainstay of his country. This will be his second performance in the games and he is expected to repeat his good showing of four years ago. George Murphy and Roscoe Evans, the Princeton University stars, are expected to place in the long distance runs and dashes, respectively. Not long ago they equalled the American amateur records in their respective events at the Harvard-Princeton-Yale track meet and they are expected to do even better at Vienna. Curiously enough, these four men, who are considered the stars of the team, got their start at Garfield High School where they were classmates.
