

ADMISSION.

A pupil may enter the Preparatory School upon only such examinations as shall be necessary for classification therein; or she may enter this department only to make up such branches in which she may be too deficient to enter the Collegiate Department, and these deficient branches, if but one or two, may, under certain conditions, be pursued in connection with the Freshman work.

For admission to the College Course in History, English and Modern Languages, examination is necessary only in so much of these subjects as is taught in the Preparatory Annex.

For admission to the Freshman class of the Classical or of the Latin-Scientific Course, a student must successfully pass examinations in the following branches:

ENGLISH.

Grammar.—As in Reed & Kellogg's Higher Lessons, Welsh, or Whitney.

Composition.—As in Lucy Chittenden's Easy Lessons.

Literature.—Rolfe's or Hudson's Julius Cæsar; Sprague's "Six Selections from Irving's Sketch Book;" Scott's Ivanhoe; Houghton and Mifflin's Modern Classics, No. 28: Hawthorne. On one of the above subjects an essay of from three to five pages will be required, which essay must be correct in spelling, punctuation, grammar structure of sentences, and must show some study of rhetorical expression.

The attention of Preparatory Schools is called to the need of a more thorough study of elementary English.

Geography.—As in any standard Common School Geography.

History.—Outlines of United States and English History, or Outlines of Grecian and Roman History.

LATIN.

Latin Grammar.—Especially the inflections; the simple rules for composition and derivation of words; syntax of cases and verbs and structure of the sentence in general, with particular regard to relative and conditional sentences, Indirect Discourse, and the Subjunctive; so much Prosody as relates to accent, quantity, versification in general, the Dactylic hexameter. Cæsar (four books of the Commentaries); Vergil (four books of Æneid); Cicero's Select Orations (four); Jones' Latin Prose Composition. (Completed.) Geography of Ancient Italy.

In pronunciation, the following rules are adopted: ā as in father; ä as in last; ē as in there, ě as in met; ī as in machine; ī as in piano; ō as in holy; ó as in wholly; û as rule; û as in puss; c, g, and ch always hard; j like y in you; s as in sill; t as in till; v somewhat softened. In diphthongs, the sound of each vowel is preserved.

GREEK.

Greek Grammar. Goodwin. Jones' Greek Prose Composition entire. Xenophon, Anabasis, three books. (Greek not required in Latin-Scientific.)

MATHEMATICS.

Arithmetic.—Fundamental Rules, Common and Decimal Fractions, Compound Numbers, Proportion, Percentage, Square and Cube Root, and the Metric System of Weights and Measures.

Algebra.—Through Involution, Evolution, Radicals, Quadratic Equations.—Olney or Wentworth.

Plane Geometry.—As found in Chauvenet or Wentworth.

In addition to Latin, one other language is required. This may be Greek, German, or French.

For the present, the only requirement in German or French will be one year's thorough study of the subject, certified to by the master under whom it was taken. "One year's thorough study" is intended to signify such a year's work as is done in other advanced Women's Colleges, as Wellesley, Harvard Annex, Smith or Vassar.

Conditions of admission to the several Group Courses may be learned from the President.
