The Garfield Players

Truly the "Garfield Players" have lived up to their motto: "We enter on the cue." Not a cue have they missed and quite proudly can they look back upon a most successful and happy year.

Their productions have met with popular approval everywhere. They have produced their plays not only in the Garfield auditorium but for many clubs, churches and societies.

In their club meetings they have studied each type of drama and illustrated each one. They have also studied characterization, stage settings, lightings, make-up and the technique of stage and action.

This year has indeed been an inspiration and they are planning for a much more successful and prosperous one to come.

"Three Pills in a Bottle," is a comedy in one act. The scene is laid in the humble home of Widow Sims and her little invalid son, Tony.
